Mrs. J. R. Campbell, 1207 Riverside dr., was hostess at a 1 o'clock buffet luncheon for the members of the Daughters of the American Revolution. A profusion of garden flowers decorated the home. Thirty-five guests were received by Mrs. Campbell who was assisted by Mrs. Shepherd Crumpacker, Miss Mary Robens Abbott, Mrs. Mary Rulo, Mrs. Kate Limpus and Mrs. Rebekah Porter.

UN Porter. The annual election of officers took place during the business session of the afternoon and resulted in the election of Mrs. Edward Chapin, as president; Mrs. Shepherd Crumpacker, vice-president; Mrs. Charles Huff, as recording secretary; Mrs. Rolene Abbott, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Arthur Irwin, treasurer; Mrs. Elmer Daley, registrar; Mrs. Laura Harwood, chaplain and Mrs. D. K. Spitzer, historian. The members will be the guests of Mrs. George Alward at her country home June 14 at a picnic.

A very charming informal 7 o'clock dinner was given by Miss Mary Agnes Haggerty and Miss Helen Schwab at the home of Miss Haggerty, 734 Cushing st., last evening for the members of the graduating class at St. Joseph's academy. Covers were placed for 10 guests at a dinner table attractively appointed and decorated in a color scheme of coral and silver. A mound of sweet peas centered the table and the places of the guests were used at the table ends. Following the dinner the evening was spent socially with music and dancing.

A 1 o'clock luncheon will be given for the class Saturday at the home of Miss Dorothy McInerney, S. Taylor st.

Miss Gertrude Smozer, 113 S. Laurel st., was hostess to members of the senior class of St. Joseph's academy at a theater party. Supper, Wednesday afternoon, was served at the home of Mrs. J. C. Oliver at a table effecting a color scheme of silver and coral, the class colors. A large basket of white and coral shaded sweet peas graced the center of the table. The party was chaperoned by Miss Ethel Wass and Miss Ann Gluckert.

An afternoon quilting held by the Ladies' Sewing circle of the Zion Evangelical church Thursday in the parish school was very well attended. At the close of the afternoon devoted to quilting and sewing, refreshments were served by the hostesses. Mrs. T. Krueger, Mrs. William Schiffer, Mrs. Arthur Peters and Mrs. Oscar Peters. Another meeting of the circle will take place in two weeks.

Mrs. August Hoglund will act as hostess at the next meeting to be held in two weeks at the same place.

A lovely wedding of late May was that of Miss Grace N. Spangler of Mishawaka, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. D. D. Spangler of Kendallville, Ind., and Lowell S. Fry, son of Mrs. Samuel Fry of Mishawaka, which took place Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock at the First Evangelical church at Mishawaka. The Rev. D. D. Spangler officiating.

Mrs. E. L. Duker, sister of the bride, played Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" as the bridal party entered, and "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms" during the ceremony. She rendered "Grande Marche Nuptiale" by L. Beek, as the bridal party left the altar. The altar was beautifully decorated with trailing evergreens, ferns and garden flowers. Two hundred and twenty-five guests were in attendance.

The bride was gowned in white satin and wore a short veil. Her flowers were a shower bouquet of white roses and sweet peas. Miss Wilma Zimmerman acted as bridesmaid, and wore a gown of orchid organdie with a picture hat to match. Her flowers were a corsage of pale pink sweet peas. Little Mildred Alberts acted as flower girl, and wore a dainty frock of pink organdie. She carried a basket of pink roses.

Raymond D. Cooper of South Bend acted as groomsmen, and the usher was E. L. Duker, K. R. Smith, N. Q. O'Brien and William Hunt, all of Mishawaka.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. E. L. Duker on Calhoun st., Mishawaka. The house was attractively decorated with garden flowers and ferns. Mr. and Mrs. Fry left for a wedding trip through the state and will be at home after June 1 at 560 W. Battel st., Mishawaka.

Mrs. Eugene H. Miller, Ironwood rd., was hostess at an attractive 1 o'clock luncheon Wednesday afternoon complimenting Miss Carol Elizabeth Eberhart, whose marriage to Samuel D. Hillier of this city will take place June 14. The charmingly appointed table was centered with a sprig in blue crystal vases. A poem written by Mrs. Miller marked the occasion. The guests included Miss Eberhart, Mrs. Fred G. Eberhart of Mishawaka, Mrs. R. Clark of St. Joseph, Mo., Mrs. Carl Ginz, Mrs. John Zigler, Mrs. J. M. Studebaker III, and Mrs. Catherine Oliver of this city.

Another Victim Claimed In "Bloody Nineteenth"

By United Press: CHICAGO, May 26.—Fueidists of the "bloody nineteenth" ward reached out and claimed another victim early today.

Michael Laccari, lieutenant of the late Anthony D'Andrea, political chieftain who was assassinated recently, was riddled with bullets in his saloon. Laccari, police said, was a feud victim, the enemies killing him in reprisal for deaths in their ranks.

Laccari, following the murder of D'Andrea moved out of the "bloody nineteenth," but this failed to save his life.

Industrial chemistry gains a new element of efficiency through the development of an electric system of automatic testing and control, by which any change in the proper action of the process, as it proceeds, is not only reported, but is corrected as well. Thus the strength of a solution, its acidity, gaseous content, or other characteristic, may be recorded continuously on a distant chart, while electrically operated valves work automatically to meet immediately any shortage or surplus of a constituent part of the mixture. The system provides means for compensating against changes of temperature, pressure or time of reaction, and even the problem introduced by different mixtures having the same electrical resistance, has been solved. — Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Revelations of a Wife My Heart and My Husband By Adele Garrison

What's to be done?" Dicky signalled the question to me across the weeping figure of his mother. I reflected a bit cynically that his little appeal was distinctly masculine. He had in his own slangy vernacular, "spilled the beans" and expected the woman nearest to him to pick them up and restore them to their proper place again.

I made a "shooing" motion with my hands, which he understood and heeded by getting out of the room without delay. I smiled after his flying figure, then went to my weeping mother-in-law and put my arms about her.

"Now, mother," I said, coaxingly, "you know Richard doesn't mean a thing by his nonsense. His tongue is just hung in the middle, that's all. And you'll get your eyes all right, and that will never do for the dinner. Please go on with your dressing and leave this matter of Junior with me. I'll plan some way. If I cannot, I'll plan myself. But you're the one of all of us, except Dicky, who must be there tonight. Dicky, of course, is best man and naturally has to be at the dinner, while I do not. And Miss Paige distinctly said that there would be a number of older people there, and that she especially wished you to meet them. It would be a fine commentary on me, wouldn't it, if Dicky and I reported that we left you at home with the baby?"

She sniffed, gulped, wiped her eyes, and I knew that her little brainstorm was over.

"I suppose it wouldn't be treating Miss Paige right," she said doubtfully. "But however will you manage? I didn't mean any reflection on you, Margaret, when I said I used to stay at home with my babies."

"I know you didn't," I said cheerily and hastily, for the tremolo stop was out again in her voice, and I feared another deluge of tears. "And I'm quite sure I won't have to stay at home either. Can you manage the rest of your dressing without me?"

"Yes, yes, go along, and fix up a plan if you can," she said hurriedly.

I promptly availed myself of the permission by leaving the room and fairly running down the corridor, out of the door and across the lawn to Mrs. Lukens' big house.

Through the windows, across which the curtains were not drawn, I saw the light in the secure seated in a rocking chair before the open fire, which I had learned she invariably lit when the chill of dusk came on, her skirt turned primly back over her knees so that the heat of the fire should not hurt it, a drop light on a small reading table by her side, and a book in her hand.

I knocked, opening the door directly after.

And you'll find the pleasure of Kodaking greatly increased if you use an Eastman Vest Pocket Autographic Kodak.

It's never in the way and always ready for "work." In this little Kodak you'll find all the features of the larger members of the Eastman family and what pleasure it will be to look over those autographed pictures in the future.

Talk about real values, we certainly are offering them at this store. When the boss and I were getting out ad copy I learned the true meaning of the word value, and the wonderful part of it is that this store is just chock full of them. Of course the boss won't let me use enough space in the regular ad to tell you about them all, so I had to tell you about them here. And of all the years I've been writing copy about wonderful values for the money the biggest values ever are the ones I've seen at this store.
